Dear Senators Sullivan and Rosen,

On behalf of the undersigned national organizations representing consumers, families, mental health and addiction providers, advocates and other stakeholders committed to strengthening access to high-quality mental and behavioral health care, we are writing to express our strong support for S. 4211, the Facilitating Reforms that Offer Necessary Telehealth in Every Rural (FRONTIER) Community Act, which would expand access to mental health services through telemedicine in frontier states. Your leadership on this issue is critical for individuals with mental health conditions in communities that traditionally lack access to needed services and providers.

People living with behavioral health conditions need timely and safe access to mental health and substance use disorder services during this crisis. The pandemic is exacerbating existing behavioral health issues and leading to new instances of individuals suffering from anxiety, depression, and substance misuse, and “originating site” requirements on the use of telemedicine for mental health services only exacerbate the lack of access our frontier states experience.

Your legislation expands access to mental health services through telehealth in frontier states and makes the change permanent. We applaud you for removing the “originating site” requirement in existing law. Further, we commend you directing the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and the Department of Agriculture, in consultation with the Indian Health Service (IHS) and the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA), to award grants for broadband infrastructure and provide additional telehealth flexibility for Indian Health Service facilities.

All of these provisions are essential to the frontier states: Alaska, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming. This legislation will grant individuals experiencing mental health conditions access to safe and timely care and will help mitigate some of the broadband issues that frontier states and Indian Health Service facilities face.

The MHLG thanks you for your bipartisan commitment to improving access to telehealth for Americans who need mental health treatment and live in frontier communities. We pledge our support to help you move this legislation through Congress.

Sincerely,

2020 MOM
